Data Limitations

CB Insights deal records focus on portfolio companies, transaction values, and investor participants rather than advisory firms. The following information is not captured in the available dataset:

- Financial advisor assignments (sell-side vs. buy-side)
- Management consulting firms involved
- Due diligence provider roles (commercial DD, operational DD, financial DD)
- Legal counsel representation
- Other transaction advisory services

Market Context

The 11 transactions span several logistics subsectors:

- Cold chain logistics: Lineage ($1.7B) and Emergent Cold Latin America ($500M) represent the largest capital deployments, reflecting PE interest in temperature-controlled infrastructure [\[1\]](#)
- E-commerce fulfillment: Ecom Express and Emiza serve the digital retail supply chain in India [\[1\]](#)

- Transportation management systems: project44 and 3G provide software solutions for freight visibility and shipping optimization ^[1]
- Integrated logistics platforms: Korber (KKR investment), Blume Global (Bridgepoint), and Gnosis Freight (Vista Equity Partners) offer technology-enabled supply chain solutions ^[1]

Investment Stage Profile

The transactions include:

- 7 standard Private Equity rounds
- 2 Private Equity - II rounds (follow-on investments)
- 1 Private Equity - III round (Lineage's $1.7B transaction)
- 1 Private Equity - V round (Ecom Express)

This distribution suggests a mature market where PE firms are making both initial platform investments and subsequent growth capital deployments ^[1].

Analysis Gap

To identify which financial advisors, consultants, and due diligence providers have been most active in maritime and logistics PE deals, alternative data sources would be required, such as:

- Press releases from advisory firms announcing deal participation
- Transaction tombstones from investment banks
- League tables from financial advisory industry publications
- SEC filings for US-based transactions that may disclose advisor fees
- Direct outreach to PE firms or portfolio companies
